

10 Bite-Sized Stats About K-12 Nutrition

indicate they're doing an "Excellent/Very Good" job of providing healthy meals to students in their district

Districts give their Nutrition Operations performance an overall "B" average

only 56%

believe they do a good job of collecting meal applications

70+%

conduct back-office processes with at least some level of manual effort

78%

agree that school food service budgets will only get tighter in the future

57%

are "Extremely" or "Very" concerned about the rising costs of managing K-12 nutrition programs

52%

report staffing shortages have hurt their nutrition program's ability to operate efficiently

only 32%

feel their ability to hire or attract new staff is "Excellent" or "Very Good"

only 48%

feel their ability to retain staff is "Excellent" or "Very Good"

Top 3 concerns among K-12 leaders surveyed about their Nutrition Program are:

Overall increasing costs

Food service staffing shortages

Reimbursement rates not covering per-meal costs

Get additional insights in the K-12 Nutrition Survey Report

Find out what increasing costs, staffing challenges, and USDA rule changes mean for K-12 nutrition programs in the coming year. Our full report dives deeper into stats, insights, and solutions.

GET THE REPORT

